

SERVICE AND OAHU MEET IN FINAL BATTLE

If Soldiers Win They Will Take Championship — In Case of Victory Oahus Must Play Asahis

The big game of the inter-island baseball series will be played tomorrow, when the All-Service and Oahu teams meet at Athletic Park. Play will begin at 3 o'clock sharp.

The soldiers go into the game with four straight wins to their credit, and if they can manage to annex the long end of tomorrow's score, they will have won the inter-island championship, and the trophy that goes with it. This is a distinction worth working for, and the army players won't lose on the job. They will have a big delegation of soldiers on hand to root for them, and taken from every angle, the game should be one of the most exciting of recent months. More is at stake than in any game since the final of the Hawaii-Portuguese pennant series, and that sort of thing makes for good baseball.

Manager Dave DeSha of the Oahus stated this morning that he had nothing new to spring in the way of play, but that his regulars were in good shape, and that they would fight to the last man for victory. Barney Joy will do the hurling, and the big fellow is in good shape. Lal Tin will not be in the line-up this week, his appearance having been very properly protested.

Lawson will do the hurling for the soldiers. He pitched Thursday against Punahou, and should be just right by tomorrow. The tall concrete soldier is improving steadily, and looks like a hard proposition for any team to go up against. The balance of the Service line-up will be the same as that of Thursday, which assures a strong defense, and good hitting strength.

If the Service team wins, the inter-island series is over, but if the soldiers lose, they still have a chance to be for first place, as the Oahus will have to play a postponed game with the Asahis to complete their schedule. Should the latter win, the Service and Oahu aggregations would then be tied with four wins and one loss.

EXERTION FATIGUED HIS BRAIN

Thought It Was Impossible to Overcome Premature Old Age.

A friend's advice may be cheap, but it does not pay to ignore it, particularly when your nerve power is impaired.

Anyone suffering from premature old age will take hope from the words of a gentleman, who says "Some months ago, I was recommended to try Persian Nerve Essence by a friend. I was at first doubtful, for I thought it impossible to find any remedy which would give real results; but today, I wish to give my most grateful congratulations. I was in a state of mental debility. Any exertion made in matters of mercantile calculation fatigued my brain, my memory nor my heavy and slow walk which I had at that time, not corresponding to my age. Today I find myself entirely recovered after taking only two boxes of so useful a preparation, and therefore it is a great pleasure to write you this letter, as it is only just to your medical preparation which produces so much good."

Persian Nerve Essence is a dependable remedy for nervous prostration or exhaustion, debility or inactivity of the nerves. It has brought happiness, strength, vigor, and vital power to young men prematurely aged and to the middle-aged and old who have suffered from a breakdown of mental and physical vigor.

The action of the oriental properties of Persian Nerve Essence is almost magical; the bright eye, the elastic step, the clear and active brain, the courage, strength and comfort they impart, are almost immediately apparent. The way has been shown to you—start today to regain your health.

One box of Persian Nerve Essence is frequently sufficient; in obstinate cases it may be necessary to take a full treatment of six boxes to obtain the best results. It is absolutely guaranteed that the full treatment of six boxes will produce the most satisfactory results or the money will be refunded. Give Persian Nerve Essence a good fair trial, commence now — today — and be a well man.

The name of Persian Nerve Essence is now changed to Sensaperta for purposes of registration. The preparation has not been changed in any way, only the name. Sold by all druggists and by The Chambers Drug Co., Ltd., THE BROWN EXPORT CO., 74 Cortlandt St., New York, N.Y., U.S.A.

DICK CAVILL DIDN'T TEACH DUKE TO SWIM

Honolulu, March 3, 1914.
Sporting Editor Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

Dear Sir:

We have read many times in our local papers clippings and letters from the Cavill brothers—most particularly from Dick Cavill—remarks which are entirely untrue.

I wish to have you publish the true facts about Dick and our Duke. On Duke's first trip to the states I was his manager. We arrived in Pittsburgh on the 16th of February, 1912, and made our headquarters at the Pittsburgh Natatorium, as the guests of Mr. Freeland, who could not do enough for our boys. His instructor, Mr. Hess, was told to show the boys all he knew about the turns and tank swimming. He was only too willing and a mighty good instructor.

Dick Cavill read in the Pittsburgh papers of our boys stopping at the Natatorium, so he immediately went to the tank, put on a swimming suit, began to swim around and introduce himself, then asked for their manager, who was looking for an instructor to give the boys as much advantage in tank swimming as possible.

After listening to the professional's past experience and the exorbitant fee he demanded for his services, I decided that Mr. Hess was by far the proper man and his instructions were gratis.

So Dick Cavill never instructed Duke one full minute, nor did Duke see him swim more than three lengths of the tank.

While Duke swims the crawl, Dick Cavill never had the leg motive power that Duke has, and I doubt if you will find anyone who has. Cavill saw Duke get cramps the first race he swam in Pittsburgh, when he told me the boy had a "streak of yellow." I then wanted to make a bet with him that Duke would win all the events he entered two nights following at the Pittsburgh Athletic Club, but he failed to be the judge and sport he is supposed to be. Luck for him, as Duke won all the events he entered. I never saw Cavill from that day to this. He is still a wonderful swimmer, even today, but good people, don't believe what this man tells you about his portraying the secrets and fine points of swimming to our Duke.

Very truly yours,
LEW G. HENDERSON.

MCGRAW BOOSTED U.S. SOLDIERS; PEEVED BRITONS

It's all over now, and reports which reached here by mail told of the banner crowd at the Giants-White Sox game in London, and of the fact that the king actually did attend, and that he became an ardent baseball fan. But just listen to what happened just before the game, all because John McGraw opined that the American soldier was a better man than the English soldier, and that the national game helped to make him so.

The following is a London dispatch to the New York Telegram:

LONDON.—Threats of declaring a boycott on the game of baseball to be played here on Thursday next between the New York Giants and the White Sox are being made freely here today. This is a result of John J. McGraw, manager of the New York team, having declared that he considered the American soldier superior to the English army man because the former had better athletic training and was benefited physically and mentally by playing baseball. This interview caused much comment here.

Efforts are being made to get King George to attend the game which is to be played at the ground of the Chelsea Cricket Club on Thursday, but as yet he has not promised to do so. The king attending the game would greatly offset any attempt at a boycott.

McGraw's stand regarding the superiority of the American soldier was given in an interview published in a London newspaper. He spoke without reserve and gave his reasons for his statement.

This aroused a storm of protest, chief of which came in an editorial in the Pall Mall Gazette, a London daily, which, among other things, stated that McGraw was "impertinent." The editorial went on to say that McGraw possibly was not in a position to criticize either the English or American soldiers, and wound up by stating that the British soldiers undoubtedly lead the world in efficiency in every department.

Other London newspapers took up the discussion, but it was noticeable that most of them sided with McGraw, and agreed that one would have to go a long way to find a more suitable soldier than those serving under the stars and stripes.

Catcher Wilson Jumps From Giants To Feds After Rub With McGraw

WILSON

Catcher Wilson of the New York Giants is reported to have jumped to the Federal league. According to Chief Meyers, who recently reported to the spring training grounds at Marlin, Tex., Wilson accepted an offer to play with the "outlaws" because he was not satisfied with the way McGraw was using him. Wilson is considered a pretty good backstop, but he had little chance to perform when Meyers and McLean were in snipe. The coming of Larry McLean to the Giants put a crimp in Wilson's ambition.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL PLAYERS OFTEN SUCCEED IN POLITICS

[By Latest Mail]
NEW YORK.—That college football, with its rigorous training, necessity for self-control and ability to surmount repeated setbacks on the part of its players, is particularly fitting for a successful political career later in life would appear to be indicated by the number of famous players who have achieved positions of prominence in both state and nation.

There is seldom an election of importance in which some football player is not elevated to public life by the voters of one or another political party. These former knights of the gridiron are selected or appointed to all kinds of political positions, and almost without exception discharge the duties of their offices in an extremely satisfactory manner.

Senator Lee, a Princeton Forward. The recent election of Blair Lee as United States senator from Maryland recalls to mind the long list of former players who have won public recognition of similar nature. Lee, who was a famous forward at Princeton in the late '70s, playing the position of "next to end," now known as tackle, followed the footsteps of many other Princeton, Harvard and Yale players. Robert Bacon, late ambassador to France, was an old Harvard captain and halfback; James S. Harlan of the United States Interstate commerce commission, is an old Princeton forward; Lee McCurg, late treasurer of the United States, a former captain and halfback at Yale; William H. Lewis, recently assistant attorney-general of the United States, an old Harvard center; S. H. Thompson, the present first assistant attorney-general of the United States, and William W. Roper, the present surveyor of the port of Philadelphia, both Princeton ends; ex-Congressman Lucius L. Little, a linesman for the Crimmon; Gifford N. Pinchot, late chief forester, once a varsity man at Yale, and his successor, the incumbent at Washington, Chief Forester Marmon S. Graves, a former back for the Blue.

Late Gov. Russell Harvard Player. The late Gov. William E. Russell of Massachusetts was a halfback at Harvard; Gov. George R. Carter of Hawaii, once a guard at Yale; Everett J. Lake, the great Harvard halfback; lieutenant-governor of Connecticut and the famous W. H. Corbin, affectionately known as "Pa," the present commissioner of taxes for Connecticut, once a center for Yale; John C. Bell, the great Pennsylvania halfback, is attorney-general of the state of Pennsylvania.

In the Connecticut senate recently sat Frank S. Butterworth, Yale's famous fullback of 20 years ago. Down in Delaware is Justice Marvel of the supreme court and once secretary of state, an old Princeton captain and forward, and in the office of the attorney-general of Maryland sits celebrated Edgar Allan Poe of Princeton. In the office of the chief justice of New Jersey is William S. Gummere, another old Princeton captain; in Pennsylvania's 20th judicial district is another Princeton player, Judge J. M. Woods. George W. Woodruff, an ex-judge of the United States circuit court, was once a celebrated guard at Yale, and still more famous as a coach at Pennsylvania. Inventor of the quarterback kick, guards' back and a host of other football maneuvers. Reform Mayor Was Yale Halfback. A recent reform mayor of Harrisburg was Vance McCormick, the old Yale quarterback. A late assistant police commissioner in New York was Bert Hanson, the old Yale guard, and there is "Big Bill" Edwards, an old Princeton captain, late New York street cleaning commissioner, now in charge of a similar work at Newark. N. J. Charles D. Daly, the army's successful coach last fall, has recently left the office of fire commissioner of Boston to rejoin the army, and the list might be continued indefinitely.

We know a young man who considers himself a warm member merely because he burns his candles at both ends.

DETROIT TEAM OF '87 COULD BEAT CHAMPS

BOSTON.—Charley Gansel, the old-time baseball catcher, who is seriously ill at his home here, comparing the Detroit 1887 team that won the world's series from St. Louis in that year, says that it could have defeated Connie Mack's wonderful machine of last summer.

The team with its strong lineup had their star pitcher Getz on the box, Bennett or Charley Gansel behind the bat, the great "Dan" Brouthers on first, Richardson on third and Jack Rowe shortstop. The outfield consisted of Sam Thompson, Ed Hanigan and Larry Twitchell.

"There wasn't a weak spot on it, and I honestly think we could have beaten the Athletics as they played last year, because we were a better hitting team," says Gansel. "Our pitchers were as good as those of the Athletics, and in every other department we could have held our own."

The salary limit at that time was fixed by the league was $2400 a year, and only a few of the best players drew down that amount. For his work that year Gansel received $1200, an average figure for a good ball player of his day.

Each man on the Detroit team got $500 in addition to his regular salary as his share of the world's series money, and the St. Louis players got something less. Gansel picks Charley Bennett as the greatest catcher of all time.

"I've never seen his equal, and I've seen them all," said the old veteran. "If he had a weakness, no one ever discovered it. He was almost a perfect catcher."

When it comes to pitchers he contends John Clarkson and Charley Radbourne were as good as Maiky, Joe Wood or any of the other stars of today. With all respect to his old teammates and the great stars of a generation ago, Gansel admits that the great "Ty" Cobb and Walter Johnson, king of the pitchers, probably stand in class by themselves as the greatest players of all time.
